anyone still playing
Posted by oldschool - 17 Feb 2025 01:40

I was looking for the old link to download the game again cannot find it.

==========

Re: anyone still playing
Posted by KGB - 17 Feb 2025 23:50

Are you talking about an ISO image or the game itself in a virtual box?

KGB

==========

Re: anyone still playing
Posted by oldschool - 18 Feb 2025 00:48

---

looking for the game itself

==========

Re: anyone still playing
Posted by oldschool - 19 Feb 2025 11:54

---

found one and it's nice music sound and all thanks for reply. Do you guys still play online used to play on battle hq with crazy horse

==========

Re: anyone still playing
Posted by KGB - 20 Feb 2025 21:48

I remember Crazy Horse.

If it's a freely available link you might want to post here for anyone else looking.

There is no more Battle HQ obviously or any other site that directly supports DLR online play. The only way is direct internet connection (or Hamachi type connections). That pretty much limits online play to friends who can message each other via phone to meet online at certain times and swap IP addresses etc.

So not sure who still plays online these days. You remember Atomic Dustmen? He played a lot around that time. He and I play Warbarons still. He hasn't been online there since Dec but when he pops back online I'll send him over here in case he isn't checking this site often. He might still play if he has the game.

KGB

==========

Re: anyone still playing

Posted by oldschool - 25 Jul 2026 10:24

_____

You remember Atomic Dustmen? I do not. And now I cannot find where I downloaded that game it runs great only thing missing is the verbal messages "Feel thy wolves nipping at thy heals" LOL

==========

Re: anyone still playing

Posted by KGB - 25 Jul 2026 20:04

_____

Yes I remember Atomic Dustman well. But he came online around 2001 which was late in the DLR era that started in 97 with ROH. If you mostly played in 98-00 era you might have left before he came online.

Its strange you don't have the messages. The DLR music was harder to get because it ran from a CD and not from the hard drive. But the messages and voices should be all there.

Did you download the game by itself or a virtual box that had the game installed?

KGB

==========

Re: anyone still playing

Posted by oldschool - 26 Jul 2026 02:57

---

found the game online forget where. The music runs just no voice also, it has the old looking curser some programmers made it. I was also looking into AI to fix NPGS in game for a harder fight. It worked out a code in seconds I just don't have the tech skills to add to files.

==========

Re: anyone still playing

Posted by KGB - 26 Jul 2026 17:58

You can try Batz's virtual machine with DLR pre-installed. It might have the sounds and voices you are looking for.

www.dropbox.com/scl/fo/uudq1bo1vbiqoevbm...w2d&e=1&dl=0

Many use this to run DLR on Win 10/11 since the game doesn't install or run on those O/S's/

KGB

==========